

RANGELEY PUBLIC LIBRARY

May 2020 Newsletter

Dear Scott,

What's a library without its patrons? It's a quiet (think quieter than in the days of shushing librarians), lonely place. While you have been isolating at home, I have been here trying to make sure that the library is as ready as possible for the day that we are given the go-ahead to reopen. I have been selecting, cataloging, and processing new media. I have been moving books and cleaning shelves. Mostly, like all of you, I have been waiting for a return to "normal" and the return of all of you.

In the past week, other library staff returned to the library to prepare for opening. I was really hoping to be able to announce a May opening in this newsletter. However, based on the newest orders from Governor Mills and subsequent advice from the Maine State Library, we are now planning to wait until June 1st. During the month of May we will be determining what a June opening will look like, using all available information to determine what library services can be offered while still maintaining the safety of the staff and our community.

We look forward to seeing all of you,

Janet Wilson, Director
